

Figure 1. Private practitioners face the increasingly complicated responsibilities of running their own practice, including financial, administrative and work-life balance.